

'Lucky to be alive' after Legionnaires Disease

By DAN POTTER
Staff Writer

"I just feel lucky to be alive," said former City Councilman Bob Wells Tuesday night, shortly after learning the sickness that hospitalized him last month was the mysterious Legionnaires Disease that killed 29 persons attending an American Legion Convention in Philadelphia last year.

Wells, 59, 2101 East Ninth, a Sedalia painting contractor, is the third Missourian to contract and recover from the mysterious illness that has killed 35 persons nationwide and put hundreds of others in the hospital.

"It might sound like I'm dumb, but I was so sick that I really just don't remember much," Wells told The Democrat-Capital at his home Tuesday night.

Wells said he became ill July 2, one day after returning from a two-week vacation with his wife to California, Canada and Mexico. Wells was hospitalized on July 5 in Bothwell Hospital and was released July 19. He has since returned to work.

Dr. Gordon Stauffacher, Wells' physician, told The Democrat-Capital that shortly after Wells was hospitalized, suffering from pneumonia, he suspected Legionnaires Disease was involved.

Dr. Stauffacher's diagnosis was confirmed Monday when the Federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta notified state health officials that Wells had recovered from the disease.

Wells spent 14 days in the hospital, half of that time seriously ill with temperatures ranging from 104-105 degrees, Dr. Stauffacher explained.

Dr. Stauffacher said he treated Wells with the normal antibiotics used to treat pneumonia. Wells' temperature gradually subsided.

Dr. Stauffacher noted the disease is very rare, but said he began suspecting the sickness after a biopsy and other tests proved negative. He then ordered two blood serum tests be taken on Wells, one of which proved positive under testing at the center in Atlanta.

Wells first became ill while mowing his yard on July 2. Mrs. Wells said her husband could not finish mowing the yard, became fevered, and had to come into the house and lie on the couch. Despite attempts to reduce the fever at home with juices, aspirin and one trip to the emergency room at Bothwell Hospital on July 3, his fever continued to climb, Mrs. Wells explained.

Bob Alden, the public information officer with the disease center in Atlanta, told The Democrat-Capital Wednesday morning there will probably be no extensive investigation into the travels of the Wells' because "the wide distribution of 19 sporadic cases since Aug. 1, 1976, through July 1977, and other cases traced back as early as 1965, suggest that the disease is neither new nor localized."

"There is also no evidence that person-to-person transmission of the disease is involved," Alden said. "Also, perhaps one to two per cent of pneumonia cases may involve this organism, suggesting that it has been around for a while," Alden explained.

From the Philadelphia investigation it is theorized that the bacteria lives in the soil and is airborne to reach a person's lungs, Alden said.

A 1965 outbreak of pneumonia in a Washington, D.C., hospital is now associated with the Legionnaires Disease, Alden explained.

Alden said there was a large amount of excavating going on near the hospital at the time the 1965 outbreak occurred.

Mrs. Wells told The Democrat-Capital that one doctor from Atlanta had inquired about the air conditioning system in their home.

Alden said air conditioning system malfunctions also are associated with the 1965 outbreak, the Philadelphia incident and another rash of the illness in Pontiac, Mich., some years ago.

Alden explained that when an air conditioner breaks down there is usually a large amount of water collected in the

Legislators back to work

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee was set to start work today as the Missouri Legislature began a special session to consider a huge capital improvements bill with money for a new state prison.

Gov. Joseph Teasdale called the lawmakers back to Jefferson City after he and legislative leaders last month reached a compromise on the divisive prison issue—which held up approval of the $125 million building bill during the regular session.

Teasdale and the House supported a medium security prison in an urban area, while the Senate held out for a maximum security prison in mid-Missouri.

The compromise plan calls for spending $25 million to build a 500-inmate medium security prison in the St. Louis area and another $11.6 million for renovation and other construction at existing prison facilities, including additional maximum security units at the State Penitentiary in Jefferson City.

Legislative leaders have said they expect little trouble in winning approval of the compromise version and both chambers are expecting the special session to be finished by Aug. 23.

The massive appropriations bill will be considered first by the House and Rep. Wayne Goode, D-Normandy, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the panel would get right to work on the measure.

Goode said the committee planned to hold preliminary discussions on the bill later today or tonight and then hold a formal hearing Thursday.

He also said he hoped to pass the bill

The lawmakers will have to wrestle with adjustments to the bill as it was considered during the regular session. The compromise earmarks about $15 million more than either chamber had appropriated for prison construction in the original version of the bill.

The additional money for prison could mean problems for final legislative action, since more funds for correctional facilities means some other projects might have to be trimmed.

While both chambers will take up the building bill, the Senate will have its own special items to consider—three controversial appointments by Teasdale.

The governor's choice of Alberta Slavin for the fifth seat on the important Public Service Commission is expected to generate the most vocal opposition. Several senators have said they oppose the St. Louis consumer advocate.

Teasdale's choice of two Kansas City men for the state Conservation Commission also has sparked opposition from some quarters.

The governor has asked the senators to confirm W. Robert Aylward, a close personal adviser, and J. E. Dunn Jr., who contributed to Teasdale's gubernatorial campaign.

However, the executive committee of the 28,000-member Conservation Federation of Missouri has criticized Teasdale's choice.

Sudden stop turns street into a mess

Sedalia drivers had to cope with a smelly and slippery situation at 16th and Limit for most of Wednesday morning.

About 11:55 p.m. Tuesday, almost a ton of animal remains was dumped in the intersection when a truck stopped short, spilling its load.

City street department and State Highway Department crews were still at the intersection at noon Wednesday spraying the street and preparing to pour deodorizer into the sewers.

Police reported that a tractor-trailer truck, owned by National By-Products Inc., Springfield, was southbound on Limit when a car pulled in front of it. The truck driver applied his brakes but his load of animal remains was thrown from the truck into the northbound traffic lanes.

A highway department loader was sent to the scene after midnight to reload the truck, but the grease on the road and the smell remained throughout the morning.

Vance says 'wide gaps' still exist

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said today that "wide gaps" still exist between the Arabs and Israel but he hopes to make progress toward a settlement by meeting with Middle East foreign ministers in New York next month.

At a news conference, Vance said the United States might broaden the New York talks to include separate meetings with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

This depended on whether the PLO accepted Israel's existence by approving U.N. Security Council resolutions which assure all states in the Mideast the right to live in peace, he said.

At an earlier news conference, Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin said Vance had won a "great achievement during his trip," but said he and the secretary had agreed to keep it secret for now. Although he resisted further questions on the subject, he exuded an air of confidence.

"The momentum is going on," Begin said after his last round of talks here with Vance. "The next stage will be in September — meetings between the secretary of state on one hand, and the foreign ministers of Israel and several Arab neighboring countries on the other."

But Begin admitted it was uncertain when a full Geneva peace conference could be reconvened. He had previously expressed hopes for a first session by mid-October.

He reiterated Israel's stance that "under no circumstances" would the Israelis have any dealings with Palestine Liberation Organization.

Despite evidence of serious U.S.-Israeli differences over who will represent the Palestinians in future peace talks and over a future homeland for Palestinian refugees, Begin told reporters that "there was no confrontation" with Vance, and that he "did not hear one word of any form of pressure" on Israel in their talks.

Begin also said Vance would not carry new Israeli proposals to the Arab states. Vance is scheduled to make brief stopovers in Egypt, Syria, and Jordan Thursday.

The idea of holding further meetings of foreign ministers before starting formal peace talks originated during Vance's stop in Egypt.

State to crack down on games

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Liquor Control Division officials will begin issuing citations this week to 18 grocery stores with liquor licenses that have been operating bingo-type games for customers.

"There are a lot of people probably enjoying the games throughout the state, but there are only going to be a few winners," said Kenneth Carnes, director of the Department of Public Safety that oversees Liquor Control Division operations.

"If this is interpreted as gambling and that is unpopular with the people, then the law should be changed," he told newsmen.

Carnes said citations would be sent to five stores in the division's Cape Girardeau district, two in the St. Louis district, eight in the Kansas City district and three in the Kirksville district.

They will allege violations of liquor law regulations prohibiting operation of lotteries by businesses licensed to sell liquor and advertising promotions in connection with ads for liquor to encourage liquor sales.

Division action against any of the more than 200 stores operating the games for the past two months had been stalled by order of Cole County Circuit Court Judge James Riley pending further action on a suit filed against Liquor Control Supervisor Albert Letz by the stores.

But the Missouri Court of Appeals ordered Riley last week to refrain from any action in the suit, opening the way for state officials to move against the stores. The appellate court set a hearing for Sept. 26 on the full matter and Carnes said he did not expect any decision before then on whether licenses of any individual stores would be suspended or revoked because of the citations.

Bob Olson, attorney for some of the stores, said the appellate court has been asked to let Riley's order prohibiting action against any stores remain in force until the case is finally decided.

Olson said no action will be taken to halt operation of the games until the appeals court acts on that request. Store officials had said last month that if Letz is allowed to take action against them they would stop the games immediately because of the threat to their licenses.

Brown counting on Stratton-Couts vote split

By MAX ERKILETIAN
Staff Writer

Will Don Stratton hold on to his job?

Can John E. "Bud" Brown unseat him and win the post he tried to capture last November?

Will Jack Coutts triumph over the odds of running as an independent and pull off one of the most spectacular upsets of recent Pettis County history?

Analysis

And what part will Al McAllister play in all this?

Tune in again next Tuesday for the exciting conclusion of the special election for sheriff.

At this point it could be anyone's victory celebration. Anyone's but McAllister's. Most political observers write McAllister off as a natural-born "also ran." However, they concede he will gather some votes. In a tight two- or three-man race, a vote for McAllister may be a vote taken away from someone else, and that could help determine who is sworn in as sheriff Aug. 17.

With McAllister in a minor spoiler's role, the rest of the field shapes up as follows:

Republican hopes are riding on Brown to capture an office that has been a virtual Democratic monopoly for nearly 30 years.

— Brown is confident. He and many of his Republican supporters seem to feel they can ride into office on the strength of Brown's showing in the general election last November, when he polled 38 per cent of the vote. Basic to the GOP plan for victory is keeping Brown's support from the last election and having Coutts and Stratton split the Democratic vote. In this election, where 33 per cent of the vote could be the winning total, Brown is all but trying on cowboy hats.

— Stratton, who bills himself as a non-politician and a professional career law enforcement officer, put his campaign into high gear toward the end of last week. Much of Stratton's political support is inherited from former Sheriff Emmett

Fairfax. The quiet support of Fairfax and a plan for making the interim sheriff the Democratic County Committee's choice, have put Stratton on secure footing with regular Democrats. In addition to support from Democrats who choose to support their party instead of voting Republican or independent, Stratton has a following of persons who know him as a law enforcement officer.

Stratton enjoys the mixed blessing of being interim sheriff. That affords him some voter recognition other candidates might not receive, but it also makes large demands on time he might spend campaigning. It also puts him on the hot seat. If anything goes wrong in the sheriff's department between now and Tuesday, it will undoubtedly hurt Stratton.

But along with the Fairfax support he inherited, Stratton also has had to contend with some anti-Fairfax sentiment. Stratton responds that he has not made policy for the sheriff's department over previous years. However, he and his supporters are quick to voice their respect for the department.

— Coutts is perhaps the most colorful candidate in the race. He often has been seen throughout the county in his campaign van with ribbons and large signs. He is also the most organized of all the candidates. Coutts and his legions will have knocked on almost every door in Pettis County asking for votes by the end of the campaign.

Coutts told The Democrat-Capital he spends about 18 hours a day on the campaign trail. He has met workers entering and leaving local factories. His supporters have put handbills on cars in every parking lot they can find.

They claim to have distributed over 10,000 cards and almost as many handbills. One local printer said Coutts is leading Stratton and Brown combined in ordering printed material.

Coutts backers include, among others, disenchanted members of both parties, old friends who remember him from his days on the Sedalia police department and the sheriff's department, and horse owners. Coutts has spent the past several years training horses.

Geographically, the battle lines seem to be forming as follows:

The old iron horse still galloping, veteran traveler learns

(EDITOR'S NOTE: NEA Editor Phil Pastoret, a veteran traveler who never really adjusted to being hurled by air across the continent in a few hours, reveals in the following first-hand report that the train buff CAN go home again.)

By Phil Pastoret

CLEVELAND (NEA) — While the passenger jets play games of tick-tack-toe at 30,000 feet with their vapor trails and the buses trundle the highways with their loads of tailbone-weary passengers, something remarkable is happening on the twin ribbons of steel that still tie this continent together.

AMTRAK is once again moving people on the railroad. Enthusiastically.

The creature of the National Railroad Passenger Corporation, AMTRAK runs the vast majority of passenger trains in suburban and long-distance carriage in the United States.

A recent 2,565-mile odyssey by rail tells more of what's happening on America's rail system than all the demographic reports, the statistics, the projections and other tools so beloved of the experts.

YOUNG America is once again riding the rails — and loving it.

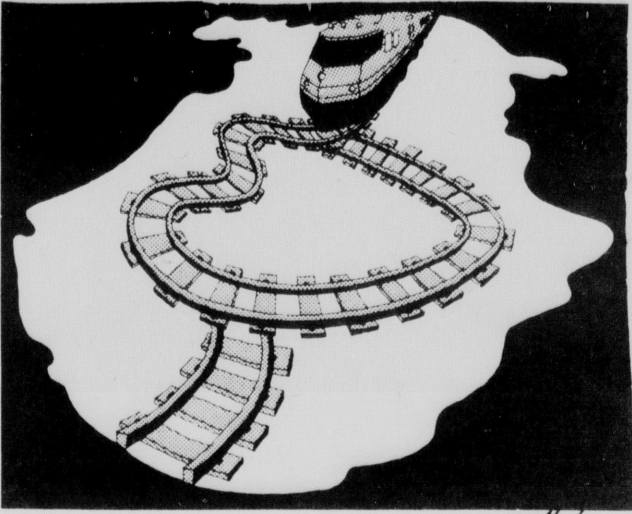

In the chill of dawn, AMTRAK's Lake Shore Limited was boarded in the company of a predominantly young crowd — backpack types headed for the coaches, and several less-than-ancient couples who sought their modest accommodations in the sleeping cars. (We almost said "Pullmans.")

Running on a somewhat-extended time schedule of the Lake Shore Express, once a crack New York Central train, the Limited as she pulls into Cleveland is a tattered collection of rolling stock gleaned from heaven knows how many railroads — a New York Central Car here, a C&O car there, a sleeper from, perhaps the old Union Pacific, and so on. The locomotive is a shark-nosed passenger engine of vintage years, but still in there tracking down the miles.

The train is 48 minutes late, small wonder, considering the abysmal state to which Eastern roadbed had been battered in the closing days of Penn Central operation. But a lot of new rail — new, welded rail — is ahead once we reach Toledo and the Limited is destined to arrive in Chicago smack on the nose — at 2:40 p.m., Central Time.

What does one DO on a train for 342 miles and 8 hours, 15 minutes?

Plenty. First, there is the train to walk — all 10 cars — plus a diner. And there is a meal to enjoy, at moderate restaurant prices. Or a snack in the club car-turned-snack car, again at no more than you'd pay the wagon that stops at the plant gates. And there is the unrivaled opportunity to catch up with the face of America — the scenery, as one is trundled along, sometimes at an alarming considering the rollercoaster track.

But mostly, the trip is people. Some have been on cars which left Boston at 3:05 the previous afternoon — others began their journey in New York at 6:15 last evening. The two trains were joined at Albany and you have joined the train the next morning.

The doddlerers are at a minimum. Only one young man was heard to have an adverse opinion. He was encountered on a bone-shaking section of track outside of Cleveland and said that it was his first time on a train, he was getting off at Toledo, and it would be his LAST time on a train. So there.

Much more typical was the reaction of Ja Morcan, a 27-year-old Utahn who had never been on a train before he bought an AMTRAK pass for 21 days of travel at a price of $220. He'd been riding, coach, to the limits of his pass, was going home, and was reluctant to foresake his new love, the railroad.

The old-time rail traveler has some shocks in store if he has been away from the rails for a few years. Station attendants tend to be young — and enthusiastic. Answers to questions are graciously given and the people operating the trains seem to be doing what comes naturally to those who love the railroad — having one heck of a good time at their jobs.

The equipment east of Chicago is old, but clean, and plans are under way to add two trains each way per day on the East Coast-Chicago run, according to S.J. Cala, director district supervisor, service, Detroit District of AMTRAK. Cala acts as stationmaster at Cleveland when he's in town (he once was the chief honcho of Cleveland Union Terminals when over 90 trains a day departed from the station.)

At Chicago, the best is yet to come. Here, at 6:30 p.m., you'll board the Southwest Limited — the posh Super Chief-El Capitan when it was under the wing of Santa Fe.

way. Washroom facilities are in the "downstairs" of each car.

If you're traveling in the sleeping cars, roomettes — compact quarters for living complete with toilet facilities are yours — or the more expansive bedroom accommodations. At an added fare, of course.

Again, what does one DO on a train for 2,223 miles and 23.5 hours?

The answer, quite simply, is that you have a chance to get it all together once again. For a full day and two nights there is NO television. If you have a portable radio, you just might get music — but there will be long stretches of country where your radio will not pick up a signal of any kind. (The sleeping cars once carried radios in the rooms, but the equipment is currently kaput.)

Because you have opted for all these hours on a train, you are given back the priceless thing the jet age has robbed us of — time.

You have time to think, to sleep, to daydream, to read — or just to sit and watch the panorama of America flow past the window of your coach or sleeping compartment — or the high-level observation cars of the train.

The train takes you through country and past vistas unscannable from the highway or airway yet to be built or flown. You get the feel — the true sense of the tremendous expanse of the land we live in.

You'll pay a few bucks more — dollar for dollar — Chicago to Los Angeles, for train fare than you will for plane fare, if you travel first-class.

AMTRAK's Southwest Limited is but one of the trains you can take to the Coast. There are the trains over the old Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Union Pacific routes, as well as the North-South West Coast routes to explore.

And if the time you've learned once more to savor has run out, and you find you must return by air — you'll get to where you need to be RIGHT NOW. Cleanly. Efficiently. Suddenly.

Rezoning requests to be heard

The Planning and Zoning Commission will hear two rezoning requests when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Municipal Building.

Pearl and Gene Branstetter, 638 East 18th, hope to have a tract of land at 643 East 19th rezoned from R-1 (single family residential) to C-0 (non retail). The Branstetters could not be reached for comment Wednesday, but it was reported they hope to locate a beauty salon and apartment on the site.

Harry Young, 1000 West Fourth, hopes to have a tract of land he owns at the southeast corner of Ninth and Park rezoned from R-1 to C-0. Young hopes to build a home that would also house his Beltone Hearing Aid sales and service business which is now located in the State Fair Shopping Center.

Until recently, hearing aid businesses were placed in the zoning category of C-1 (local business). However, in a case stemming from Young's desire to rezone this property, the commission recently ruled that such businesses should instead be placed in the C-0 category.

Police report

Sunday robbery

Sedalia police released a report Wednesday of a Sedalia woman being robbed about 10 p.m. Sunday while walking along Johnson Street.

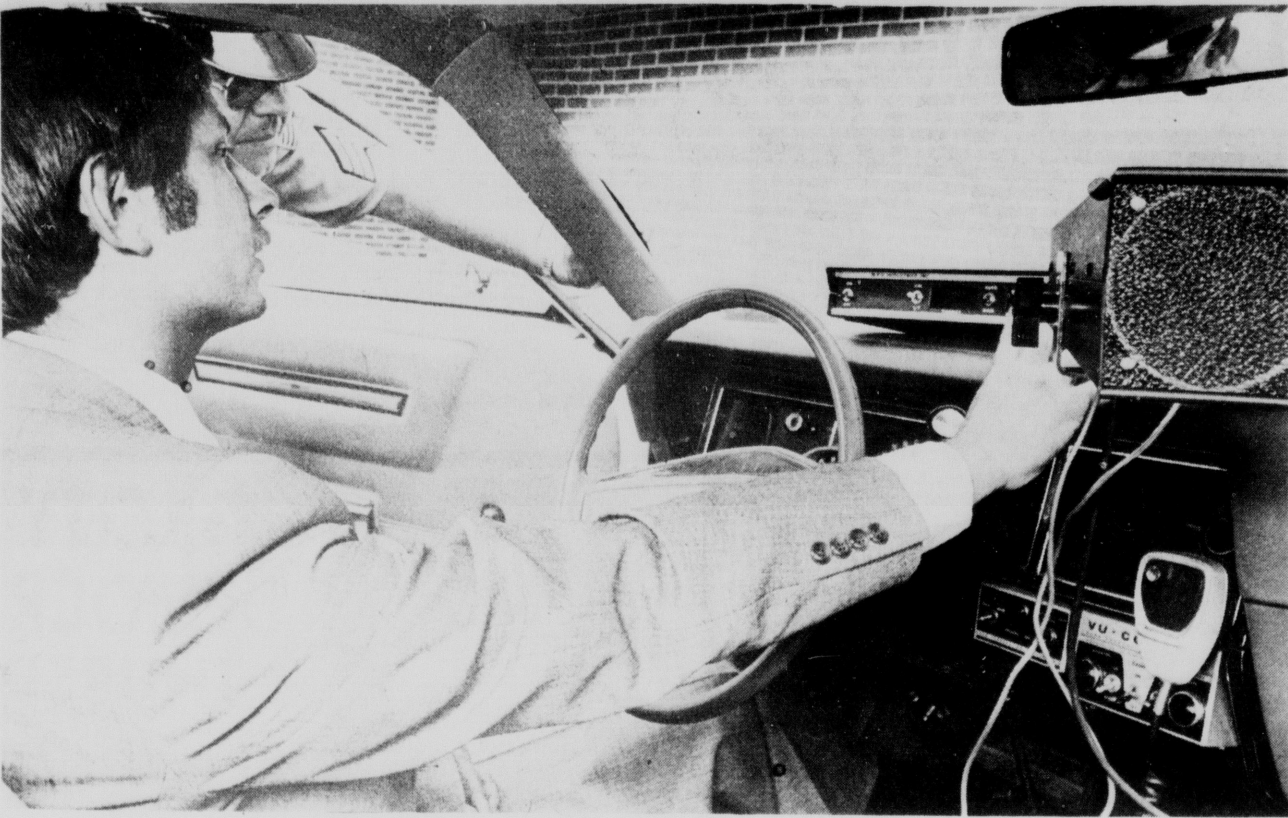

Etta Clinger, 706 North Grand, told police she was walking when two black teenage boys pulled up next to her in a car and asked if she needed a ride. When she refused, they got out of the car and grabbed a bag she was carrying. They then drove off. The bag contained her purse, a Bible, two tubes of toothpaste and three bottles of medicine. No value was set for the loss and she was not injured.

In other police news, thieves took a battery from a Pettis County Highway Department truck overnight Tuesday. The truck was parked on the department's fenced lot in the 2400 block of West Main when the $40 battery was taken. Another truck's battery was found loosened but not removed.

Kansas man hurt in one-car mishap

A Kansas man was treated for neck injuries and released from Bothwell Hospital following a one-car accident 1.5 miles south of Route V on Highway 65 about 12:05 a.m. Wednesday.

Orval L. Windholz, 42, Bennington, Kan., was injured when the northbound 1975 Mercury driven by his wife, Norma Jean Windholz, 43, ran off the roadway. The car traveled 300 feet along a ditch before striking a culvert, according to the Highway Patrol.

Speeders beware!

Ron Conway of MPH Industries, Chanute, Kan., shows Sedalia police Sgt. Lloyd Simons the operation procedure for the department's new radar speed detection unit made by MPH. The $1,147.25 unit was purchased through a federal highway safety grant and is the third radar unit owned by the city. The unit has a one-mile range.

Governors condemn Carter energy plan

AFTON, Okla. (AP) — The 16th Midwestern Governors Conference ended today on a peaceful note following an often heated discussion Tuesday that produced an overwhelming vote of disapproval of parts of President Carter's energy program.

The governors spent today on such non-controversial subjects as water and agriculture.

Nebraska Gov. James Exon and Howard Hjort, director of economics, policy analysis and budget for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, led the final day's discussion on farm problems.

Exon said he believed the over-all economy of the United States is linked with farm problems and said he did not believe the economy "is ever going to get back on a sound basis unless we help the farmer."

Hjort concurred with Exon's remarks and said that the farmer gets only a small portion of the total amount of money spent on food. He said the American people spend "$170 billion a year on food and ... $60 billion of that is the farm value of food."

Officials given first aid training

Twelve city police officers, two firemen and Dave Schick, city parking meter superintendent, took an eight-hour first aid course Wednesday conducted by the American Red Cross

The course will be repeated later this year for city firemen and police officers, city safety supervisor Bob Barbour said Wednesday. Persons who complete this first eight-hour course will later take an advanced 40-hour first aid course under Red Cross supervision.

Barbour said primary emphasis is being placed on training city firemen and police officers "because these are the people who will most likely be in life-saving situations." Barbour, who became city safety supervisor earlier this year under the Public Service Employment (PSE) program, said lectures, audio visual aides and practice periods are being utilized in the Thursday session.

Another first aid session, this one sponsored by the American Heart Association, will be held Monday for eight firemen and eight police officers. This session will emphasize heart and lung resuscitation methods.

He said wages paid to middlemen and other fees paid for processing and transportation account for most of the food dollar.

During Tuesday's all day session, the governors voted 11-1 in support of an energy statement condemning President Carter's energy program as being "dangerously weak from a production standpoint."

The energy statement urges an end of price controls on oil and new discoveries of natural gas. Only Wisconsin Gov. Martin Schreiber opposed the statement.

Oklahoma Governor David Boren and Kansas Gov. Robert Bennett got involved in a heated dispute with John O' Leary, Federal Energy Administration director, prior to the adoption of the energy report.

O'Leary had warned the governors only minutes before their vote that ending price controls on natural gas alone would result in taking $150 billion away from consumers and giving it to oil and gas producers by 1985.

O'Leary said deregulation would not solve the energy crisis and would not result in more exploration for new reserves, but simply would deplete available supplies more swiftly as producers scrambled to take advantage of extremely high prices.

Boren accused O'Leary of presenting his statistics "in a very misleading way," saying it is ridiculous to pay higher prices for foreign oil and gas while artificially holding down prices paid to American producers.

Suspect shoots himself after house surrounded

MALDEN, Mo. (AP) — A man being sought by police in two separate kidnapping incidents shot himself in the side today after he barricaded himself in a house here with his wife and child, authorities said.

The man, who identified himself as Jimmie Cooper, was taken to Dunklin County Hospital, where he was reported in good condition.

Earlier, Cooper had released 11 hostages from the Clarence Berry residence after police agreed to let him see his wife and child.

At least 100 police officers from the Missouri Highway Patrol and sheriff's deputies from Bootheel counties had surrounded the home.

In a telephone interview with reporter Carol Goldsmith of the Daily Dunklin Democrat, Cooper said, "These cops are all nuts. I just want to see my wife and system, which could enhance the growth of the organism, and when the system is turned back on it could propel the organism into the air.

The air conditioning system at the Wells' home has not malfunctioned in the past, Mrs. Wells said. However, said Mr. Wells, "We were exposed to a lot of dust and soil in the air at a vacation stop at a redwood sawmill in Northern California."

Alden said the Atlanta investigation into the mysterious disease is proceeding as rapidly as possible. "We are now trying to determine for certain if the organism has been seen before or if it could be entirely new, and we are trying to improve the laboratory growing techniques involved in growing the bacteria," Alden explained.

Wells has also been questioned about his contact with pigeon droppings in his painting work. Wells told The Democrat-Capital that one week before he left on the vacation his work put him near pigeon nests and that doctors in Atlanta were interested in that fact.

Alden said the federal center is exploring the possibility that pigeon droppings are a mode of transmitting the Legionnaires Disease. No evidence has suggested that the pigeon theory is true, however, Alden explained.

Also, in Wells' case, he came down with the disease symptoms on July 2, which was three weeks after his work near pigeons. And the federal disease center has concluded that the incubation period of the bacteria is only two weeks. That discounts the possibility that Wells contracted the disease from pigeons, Alden explained.

kids. But these chumps are all running around outside just wanting to shoot me. These chumps just won't let me out of the house."

The Associated Press later called Cooper and he said he had released his hostages and was planning to surrender shortly. He said his wife and one of his children were with him.

"I'm not trying to hurt anybody," Cooper said. "I'm going to give myself up."

In a subsequent telephone call, however, Cooper refused to come to the phone. His wife, who answered the call, said, "He's fixing to shoot himself."

Cooper shot himself while talking with Sgt. William Darnell of the Highway Patrol, police said.

Guerrillas shoot, kill nun, doctor

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Black nationalist guerrillas forced their way into a mission in a remote region of Rhodesia and shot a German doctor and an Austrian nun dead, the national military command said today.

The woman physician, Dr. Johanna Decker, 59, and the nun, Sister Ferdinand, were reported to have been killed Tuesday at St. Paul's mission, in western Rhodesia 220 miles southwest of Salisbury.

The two white missionaries were shot in the back, according to a white nun who said she survived by hiding.

The survivor said today that the group of about 10 blacks spent several hours drinking at a local beer hall before arriving at the mission.

The surviving nun, whose name was withheld, said the blacks intimidated the mission staff and forced patients to leave their beds.

Sister Ferdinand was a recent arrival in Rhodesia who had spent several years as a nursing sister at the Precious Blood hospital in Durban, South Africa.

Polly's pointers

Stubborn coffee stains rug

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I was getting dressed to go to work and while trying to put on my makeup I began to perspire. I turned my blow dryer on "cold" and let it blow over my face and this soon cooled me off enough so I could finish applying my makeup. Hope this helps others on hot sultry days. — NANCY.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I upset a whole cup of instant coffee on my carved beige living room rug and have tried several of the foam cleaners without success. There is now a dark stain that seems to defy everything. Please someone help me. — L.S.

DEAR L.S. — Of course, an old stain is much harder to remove than a fresh one and particularly so when many things have already been tried. One recommendation is to sponge the stained area with a white unstarched cloth that has been wrung out of lukewarm water. Let this be absorbed and repeat several times. Mix one teaspoon neutral synthetic soapless detergent (such as advertised for the safe washing of fine fabrics) with one-half pint lukewarm water. Apply to stains with an eye dropper. Sponge with clean cloth as mentioned above and try not to extend beyond the stain. Blot with a damp cloth rubbing with the pile. Sponge again (several times) with another cloth that has been dampened with lukewarm water. Blot up as much moisture as possible. — POLLY.

NEW YORK (AP) — "A gift of gab and a free trip around the world in 80 days" started Louise H. Morse, 72-year-old grandmother, on her annual treks to remote areas of the world.

For the past 20 years the Newbury, Mass., woman has traveled by air, jeep, dugout canoe, donkey, horse and foot, visiting poverty-stricken people.

And after her return each year she has given over a hundred one-woman lecture-and-slide shows to help those people, not only to survive but to work toward self-support.

In her visits to some 85 countries to date, Mrs. Morse has stood on the rim of a volcano in Costa Rica, bounced through barricades in Cyprus in a jeep and ridden a donkey across a frail rope bridge high in the Andes.

She has stepped into a communal Japanese bath, chatted in the afternoon with Lesotho women building roads and with the king and queen of that small African country the same evening.

"It all began after I married, when I gave up teaching and moved to Newbury," Mrs. Morse said in an interview here. "I got involved in all kinds of community activities and became president of various organizations. I was an incorrigible story teller, with the accent on humor."

"One day the lecturer booked by a local club canceled and I was asked to fill in. I talked about my family, about the zigs and zags in raising three boys. The audience seemed to like what I dished out. Soon I was giving shows at clubs, church groups, PTA or whatever."

One Sunday, she recalls, her minister outlined various charitable causes he felt were worthwhile and CARE, the international aid and development agency, was one of them.

"I went home and the phone was ringing," Mrs. Morse relates. "I said I'd come if the club would send a contribution to CARE." After she had done several such benefit shows, someone from the Boston CARE office called her and said "We were wondering who you were. We keep getting letters about you with donations." That encouraged her to continue her shows, she says, but soon she found she was running out of material.

"Just about then some dear friends offered me, as my legacy in advance, a free trip around the world if I continued my programs for CARE," she says. "This would give me new material, so I asked another friend to try to line up some bookings. When I returned, she had 125 dates all set. That's when I started billing myself, 'Mrs. Nobody Goes Somewhere.'"

Years before the "layered look" became fashionable, the handsome, statuesque Mrs. Morse was literally wearing layers of clothing on her plane trips. This enabled her to use 30 of the 44 permitted pounds of luggage to carry baby clothes, which she hand delivers to needy mothers.

"More than 2,000 audiences have heard this remarkable woman recount tales of her travels in a witty, homespun vernacular and report on aid projects she has visited," says Frank L. Goffio, executive director of CARE, for which she has raised over $100,000. But, counting repeat contributions from groups and individuals she has reached, the donations she has inspired are estimated at more than a million dollars, he added.

Recently, CARE presented Mrs. Morse, whose travel expenses are covered by a portion of her lecture fees, with a special citation as "Volunteer Extraordinary."

"The money she has raised has fed thousands of malnourished children and built schools, clinics, roads, water and irrigation systems in some of the poorest countries around the world," says Goffio.

"My husband is a stay-at-home," says Mrs. Morse, married for more than 50 years to Charles Morse, retired president of a Newbury bank. "But he helps by reading up on where I'm going and briefing me."

Their three sons are all married and the couple have eight grandchildren.

"I'm so busy the children never know when I'll be home, so they don't feel they 'have to go see mother.' That's probably why they seem to like to," says Mrs. Morse, who plans a return trip to Guatemala soon to see the rebuilding since the earthquake in Feb. 1976.

"Many older people are ill because they are bored, but keeping busy keeps me healthy. Besides, after seeing such desperately poor people, how could anyone come back to an affluent society and sit in a rocking chair not doing your little bit to help?"

Money-back guarantee is working for hospital

Hospital administrator William Ruse ...
... if you don't like it, you don't pay

FINDLAY, Ohio (NEA) — Three years ago Blanchard Valley Hospital was in deep distress. It had been sued for negligence thrice in 24 months, once for a stinging $150,000, and there was administrative worry that the worst was yet to come. Something had to be done. Something was: the hospital began to guarantee its services.

Guaranteed medical care? Blanchard Valley physicians scoffed at the notion, the hospital board trembled with apprehension, but the idea took root. Proponents argued that if services were guaranteed staff efficiency would naturally increase; besides, patients receiving in-house rebates for complaints would be less likely to run to court.

Thus late in 1974 the deed was done. Hospital customers began receiving a printed promise that most hospital services were henceforth on a money back guarantee. Though the institution could not assure "the results of your medical care ... we do guarantee that the services you receive will be performed to your satisfaction."

And so they are. Today Blanchard Valley's nursing, food, maid and ancillary services must meet standards established by patients. If not, and if the consumer notifies the hospital within 24 hours of service execution, accounts are credited with "an appropriate amount which represents the cost of the service in question."

It's not only revolutionary, it's working. Hospital administrator William Ruse, who initiated this first-in-the-nation procedure, says that early fears of "hordes of complaining patients" were fortunately exaggerated. Ruse says Blanchard has had three dozen complaints in two and a half years, and less than $400 has been rebated.

Many complainants have not even bothered asking for compensation. A patient who said her medication did not work, and that she was not allowed enough sleep, was satisfied just to be able to formalize her gripes. She also said her doctor was curt, and she was not getting any better, but she felt no need to invoke the guarantee.

Even when patients have asked for money back, the amounts have been small. The largest rebate to date was $70 for a patient who said she was medicated for surgery before the consent papers were completed. Otherwise there has been a $2 rebate to cover a hair found in a food tray; and $5.49 was given a patient who had an inoperable TV.

A few of the complaints have been questionable. A man with a sunburn said it was a drug reaction, and had to be given $20. Another patient got $1.60 for a meal that was a few minutes late. Generally, however, the grumps have been legitimate; only one request for rebate has been turned down, that one filed a month after the violation.

Ruse says the moderate reaction of patients is no surprise to him. "People aren't as bad as we may fear. I think they know we've opened up communications with them, and that we are trying to do everything we can to satisfy them." A mutual trust has therefore been created, Ruse adds; each side agrees not to gouge the other.

The trust has not been developed solely because of the guaranteed service program. In the name of better communications, Ruse has also instituted a plan to humanize patients. The appendectomy in room 335 is now Mr. Smith, and the coronary in the emergency ward has become Mrs. Jones. Isolated numbers sue, Ruse believes, people don't.

What's more, Blanchard Valley's patient communications are kept open around the clock. Each customer has a phone, called the "Aspirin Line," and is invited to call any staff member or administrator for any reason at any time. Ruse once got a 3 a.m. buzz from a patient who wanted to dictate a church bulletin; a stenographer was dispatched.

Ruse admits that some hospital employees are less than delighted with the early morning calls. He says the doctors especially have been slow to accept the new order of things — "They still think it's a gimmick." Some nurses also grumble, arguing that they can't be all things to all patients and shouldn't be expected to be.

Yet Ruse has kept the lid on staff rebellion by insuring that employees will profit from greater efficiency. Twelve thousand dollars is budgeted each year for complaint rebates, and the unused portion is then divided equally for staff bonuses. So far the staff has shared $24,000; not riches, but formerly there were no bonuses at all.

This is not to say that all is completely smooth at Blanchard Valley. X rays of left femurs can still be mistaken for right. Then there is the 67-year-old woman who is said to have been mistakenly wheeled into pediatrics. But in 29 months of guaranteed service Ruse says he's been free of malpractice suits; who could sue a nice place like this?

Roll Call Report

Skelton sides with majority on energy issues

By Roll Call Report

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes July 28 through Aug. 3:

HOUSE

NATURAL GAS — Rejected, 199 for and 227 against, an amendment to remove federal price controls from new, onshore natural gas. It was proposed to the National Energy Act (HR 8444), later passed and sent to the Senate. This vote left unchanged President Carter's plan to extend price ceilings from the interstate market to the intrastate market, too. Carter would also, through HR 8444, allow the ceiling for such newly-discovered gas to rise from its present $1.46 per thousand-cubic-feet to $1.75.

Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, a supporter, said: "In order to keep many of us going in the parts of the country where residences and commercial activities depend on natural gas, we must have those supplies. In order to get the supplies, we must have the market price to produce the supplies."

"Because deregulation permits other than true additional supplies of natural gas to rise to unregulated prices, the cost of deregulation is simply too great a price to pay for the small increase in natural gas supplies," said Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, an opponent.

Concert band to close out summer season

Ford Trimotor plane headed for Las Vegas

OTTAWA, Kan. (AP) — The "Kansas Clipper," the only Ford Trimotor plane in flying condition, has been sold to serve on sight-seeing runs over the Las Vegas strip.

It was sold Tuesday to Seenic Airlines of Las Vegas by its Ottawa, Kan., owners, Chuck and Diane LeMasters, who flew the plane at air shows around the country for the past five years.

The aircraft which has a cruising speed of 95 miles per hour, will take about two days to fly to Las Vegas, with fuel stops every three hours, LeMasters said.

The plane is one of only six trimotors in existence and the only one in flying condition, LeMaster said.

"The plane is like a child to us. It's hard to let it go," Mrs. LeMasters said. "But we are tired of the life we have created that started as a hobby and grew into a big business."

The LeMasters had spent 176 days away at air shows last year.

The plane was the second Ford Tri-Motor the LeMasters have owned.

Rep. Richard Ichord voted yes; Rep. Ike Skelton voted no.

HOME INSULATION — Adopted, 217 for and 205 against, an amendment establishing a program whereby utility companies and government help to insulate homes. It was attached to HR 8444, the bill to establish a national energy policy, later passed and sent to the Senate.

Home heating accounts for an estimated one-fifth of domestic energy consumption. This amendment is aimed at insulating 60 per cent of the 75 million residential dwellings. Utilities would be required to educate customers as to the need for home weatherization and, eventually, to offer to install weatherization. The amendment provides federal grants to poor people and low-interest loans to middle-income people to finance home insulation.

Most opposition was directed at the requirement that state governors compile and publish lists of qualified lending institutions and insulation suppliers and contractors.

"The lists must be drawn in a fair, open and nondiscriminatory manner so as to provide customer protection," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., a supporter.

"Can you see the abuse?" asked Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., an opponent. "...By a provision of this kind can we not wonder how many dinner ticket contributors are going to and will be appearing on the selected list of contractors and suppliers...?"

Members voting yes favored the home insulation program. Skelton voted yes; Ichord voted no.

WHEAT — Eliminated, 300 for and 109 against, a proposed federally-sponsored program of wheat research and nutrition education. It was to have been created as part of the 1977 Agricultural Act (HR 7171), later passed and sent to conference with the Senate. But this vote killed the proposal.

A Wheat Industry Council was to have been set up by the Department of Agriculture to foster research into improved wheat strains and conduct "consumer education" aimed at increasing wheat consumption. The program was to have been funded by a tax on processed wheat, amounting initially to three one-hundredths of a cent added to the retail price of a loaf of bread.

Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., sponsor of the amendment to delete, said: "...the federal government should not become involved in promotion programs such as this. Once one commodity has its own promotion program, another commodity will want its own program in order to prevent its being put to a competitive disadvantage."

Rep. Gladys Spellman, D-Md., an opponent, said that consumers would benefit from the program. "These programs will not be just another slick advertising or promotion campaign," she said, "but will focus on straight research and on nutrition education programs based on the results of such research."

Members voting yes opposed creation of the wheat program.

Ichord voted yes; Skelton voted no.

SENATE

OFFICE ACCOUNTS — Tabled, 63 for and 29 against, a proposal outlawing the use of campaign contributions to defray a senator's official expenses. It was proposed to S 926, a bill amending the 1971 Federal Election Campaign Act, later passed and sent to the House.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., a supporter of tabling, said the record should be "absolutely clear that it is not only legal but it is not unethical under the present ethics code of the Senate...for a senator to use excess campaign funds for the reimbursement or expenditure of the ordinary and necessary expenses in connection with his office."

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., an opponent of tabling and sponsor of the proposal, said: "The history of such funds, which are known in common parlance as 'slush funds,' is notorious.... All that is sought by my amendment is to erect a wall, for the benefit of senators as well as for the reassurance of the public, between private contributions and official duties."

Senators voting yes favored the continued legality of using contributions for official expenses.

Sen. John Danforth voted yes and Sen. Thomas Eagleton voted no.

CAMPAIGN FINANCING — Failed, 52 for and 46 against, to achieve the three-fifths majority necessary to cut off a filibuster against the bill (S 926, see above vote) to inaugurate public financing of U.S. Senate general-election campaigns. Following this final unsuccessful attempt at cloture, supporters of public financing conceded defeat and scuttled the public financing section of S 926.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a supporter, said: "The success of the 1976 presidential election showed that the principle of public financing is both sound and workable. And recent polls have indicated that the public supports, by wide margins, the financing of congressional elections through the income tax checkoff system."

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., an opponent, said: "This bill will no more insure clean elections in every instance than Congress can pass a law that will automatically make everyone healthy, wealthy and wise.... I, for one, refuse to subscribe to the insulting notion that contributions from private sources, whether they be large or small, are inherently corrupting."

Senators voting no opposed public financing of Senate campaigns.

Eagleton voted yes and Danforth voted no.

and thus killing the proposal, said: "I have serious doubt as to whether that could be held constitutional.... The (Supreme) Court has already said that we cannot limit the amount of a person's own money he can spend in a campaign."

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., the sponsor and an opponent of tabling, said that "the question of how a campaign is financed and how much of a man's personal money is to be spent should be known up front.... If you do not have that knowledge up front, then a candidate using his own personal money...can in the last week tilt dramatically the results of an election and do so without the public having any sense of what is happening."

Senators voting yes favored killing Johnston's proposal. Danforth voted yes and Eagleton voted no.

'You name it and I've won it'

Queen of the contests tells all

By Kay Brookshire

CINCINNATI (NEA) — Compulsive coupon clippers and contest-enters should heed the advice of a woman who's made an art of winning contests.

Be persistent and depend more on pluckiness than luck, advises the contesting pro. She says almost anyone willing to work seriously at contesting can develop winning techniques.

Eighty-one-year-old Mary Garner, a Cincinnati native who now lives in Florida, has won more than 1,000 contest prizes in the past 20 years.

She's won 13 color television sets, more than $5,000 in cash, a $2,500 boat, toasters, wall-to-wall carpeting, roller skates, world-wide vacation trips, rent for a year, 66 cans of dog food, and more.

She gives away most of her winnings to her two sons, their children or her friends.

"I won a trip to Paris, France, which I gave to my son and his wife," she said. "They hadn't been married long. That was from Virginia Slims," said Mrs. Garner, who has entered as many as 500 contests a year.

"I won a trip to Jamaica in a sweepstakes, and I won a trip not long ago to Disney World. I won one to Hawaii once and carpeting for my son's home in Pittsburgh.

"I've won many television sets, washers and dryers, electric stoves and bicycles. You name it and I've won it — everything but a house," she said.

Mrs. Garner started entering contests years ago as a hobby and now it's almost a full-time occupation for the Glendale-born widow.

She publishes a monthly contest bulletin sent to more than 1,000 readers. She travels around the country to contesting conventions and club meetings.

The National Contesters Association are a group of people whose hobby is winning contest money and prizes. They work hard at it by learning angles which most casual entrants don't know. They meet to exchange ideas, experiences and information on the contest circuit.

The contests Mrs. Garner enjoys most are those requiring creativity — writing a slogan, jingle or essay, usually about a home or consumer product or creating a recipe.

She looks disdainfully, however, at sweepstakes, even though she has entered many of them and won some. The difference between a contest and sweepstakes is that a contest involves skill; sweepstakes winners are randomly selected.

"In the good old days, you used to be able to fill in a word, create a slogan or write something. It was more fun to win something that you felt you had actually earned," she said.

"But when you enter a sweepstakes, you take your name and throw it in a box," she lamented, leaving most of your fate to luck.

With years of successful contesting experience behind her, Mrs. Garner said her secret to success is a mixture of common sense, knowledge of the English language and mastery of some basic skills about contesting.

"The secret is writing what the contest sponsors want to hear," said Mrs. Garner.

"Use plain, everyday English ... tell them something to make them happy. If I can't say something nice about them, I won't write it," she said. She made a soap company happy enough to give her $100 for a jingle that said: "I'm glad I use Dial — For it's my contention — There's truth in the adage — 'An ounce of prevention...'"

If it's a skill contest requiring writing, said Mrs. Garner, "I am going to buy it (the product) and use it so I can find out something about it," she said. She does not buy products involved in sweepstakes contests.

Mrs. Garner said recipe contests are "the big thing right now." She admits she doesn't enjoy cooking and "makes up" recipes. She once won $50 from Ladies Home

Journal in a recipe contest. Mrs. Garner has kept at her contesting hobby for many years because she said it keeps her mind alert and it has "paid off."

Right now, she has "sworn off" entering sweepstakes. How long will that last?

"Probably another week or two," she admitted. Such "swearings off" usually don't last long, she said.

"You don't win for a month; then you swear off, like an alcoholic. Then you get a prize," she said, "and you're right at it again!"

Sedalia has job opening

Applications are now being taken to fill an opening for a city maintenance worker under the Public Service Employment (PSE) program.

This vacancy was created by the resignation of a PSE employee in the city sewer and sanitation department, but the new worker will be placed in the city parking meter department. The starting salary for this job will be $563 per month plus regular fringe benefits. This employee will be responsible for painting meters and curbs, cleaning grass and weeds from metered parking lots and performing other miscellaneous maintenance work.

Interested individuals who have been unemployed for at least 15 weeks can contact the local Employment Security office, 215 East Fifth, regarding this job.

Ten winning tips from Mary Garner

By MARY GARNER

This one won a bicycle:

"It fuels you up with inner satisfaction!" (Hi Pro, General Mills).

This one won $1,657 in equipment from Lever Brothers:

"Give bad breath and tooth decay the 'brush off' Pepsodent way."

Both of these won tricycles:

"For the best in 'swirled' O fares." (Frosty O's)

"The cereal you never get ped up with." (Cocoa Puffs)

This one won a television set:

"I like Zenith TV because imprisoned in my downtown apartment by steel skyscrapers, traffic noises and neighboring appliances, I served time watching stinky crazy televisions that jumped guiltily at every sound or plunged into gray-black solitary, until beautifully 'arraigned' ZENITH, always on good behavior, commuted my sentences, unlocking the door to distance viewing pleasure."

Ten tips on how to win

1. Constantly scout our contests. Women's magazines, newspapers, grocery shelves (on boxes and cartons) and contest newsletters are good sources.

2. Enter on time. Note the contest deadline and the required postmark date. Missing this gets you disqualified right off the bat.

3. Follow the rules exactly. If the directions say send entries on a three-by-five card, don't vary the size. Use only original entry blanks, never copies. They're almost always banned. Don't type if it says print.

4. When writing slogans or jingles, say what the sponsors want to hear. Study the product you're writing about. Buy it, if possible. Use it. Analyze its advertisements. Study its label. Then emphasize its selling points in your entry.

5. If possible, study past contest winning jingles and slogans. Some sponsors want sincerity; others cleverness.

6. Keep the writing simple. Always use correct English.

7. Puns, analogies and word plays often help catch judges' attention.

8. Enter often. Some people send 200-300 entries to one contest. Mrs. Garner recommends about 15.

9. Don't send all your entries to one contest at once.

Space out the mailings several days or weeks apart. For sweepstakes in particular, most judges take a handful of entries from each mailing. At deadline time, winners are usually selected in a random drawing from entries that arrived in many different mailbags.

10. Be persistent. After entering one contest, don't sit back and wait to see if you win. Keep "feeding the fire."

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Coffee addiction causing tremor?

Dear Dr. Lamb — I drink from 20 to 24 cups of coffee daily, take two aspirins daily and drink cokes. I eat cheese and bologna sandwiches and sometimes eggs.

My hands tremble and my head shakes a bit, too. A doctor diagnosed it as essential tremor and also said I had some heart involvement. I am 73 years old.

People tell me drinking that much coffee and not eating properly could be the cause of the tremor. I do not believe it. What do you say?

Dear Reader — Why not find out by stopping the coffee? I would think with the price of coffee these days that drinking 20 or more cups a day would give anyone the shakes.

Seriously, coffee contains caffeine, which is a brain stimulant. It has actions similar to "go pills" to prevent sleeping. That is why I sometimes refer to it as a liquid go pill. The amount of caffeine you are consuming is certainly enough to over-stimulate your nervous system and cause the shakes. Whether or not it does in your case can easily be determined by stopping it.

If you do decide to stop I would suggest that you do so gradually or you are apt to have withdrawal symptoms, including headaches. May I suggest cutting down to four cups a day, spread over the day and then to two, one, and finally none, for the test. If you must have the taste of coffee, switch to one of the decaffeinated brands as a substitute as they will not have this effect on you. Cut out the colas and any tea you might be using also.

Your brief description of your diet is insufficient to say whether or not you are eating properly but if that is all you eat you need to have your doctor give you a balanced diet.

Small amounts of bologna and processed cheese are all right if the rest of your diet does not contain much fat or cholesterol.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-1, Coffee, Tea, Cola, Cocoa to give you more information on caffeine containing drinks. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Please tell me which oil has the least amount of cholesterol, soy bean, safflower, cottonseed, peanut oil or corn oil? I would like to make my own mayonnaise as the ready-made ones have too much salt in them. I have a tendency toward high blood pressure which is under control with medicines.

No need to tell me to reduce as I weigh 102 pounds — not bad for a 70-year old small framed lady of 5 feet 1.

Dear Reader — Not bad. I can't refrain from reminding you though that how much fat is under the skin is what is important, not what the scales say in pounds.

None of the oils you mentioned contain any cholesterol. Cholesterol is an animal product and is not found in vegetables. For what advantage it may have, safflower oil contains the least saturated fat and the most polyunsaturated fat of the oils you list. I suspect you could use any of these for your recipe. If you want to avoid cholesterol don't use egg yolks in its preparation. You might find a low salt preparation in the dietetic section of your grocery store. (NEA)

Intelligence abuses ever-present threat

WASHINGTON — Thirteen years ago, as director of the U.S. Information Agency, I sat in meetings of the supposedly very secret "Forty Committee." Naively, I believed that I was helping to pass judgment on my country's clandestine activities around the world.

Rowan

With Averell Harriman of state, Cy Vance of defense, Richard Helms of the CIA, McGeorge Bundy of the White House and others, we approved guns for this faction here, tanks for that besieged national leader there.

the high-falutin "Forty Committee" was dealing in Mickey Mouse antics. Nobody ever asked it to approve the "big stuff" — like a plot to poison the toothpaste of the Congo's Patrice Lumumba, or the wiping out of Chile's Salvador Allende, or the many other "dirty tricks" whose revelation has shocked Americans in recent years.

Thirteen years ago, even five years ago, I sincerely believed that the president, his national security adviser, his secretaries of State and Defense, had the intelligence community under control. I felt confident that the CIA, the National Security Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, were engaging in no "black bag" operations without approval at the top of our government.

So you understand why I have been more dismayed than most Americans to read story after story of gross criminality within the intelligence community. I have found it painful even to read stories about the CIA feeding LSD and other mind-altering drugs to unsuspecting humans as part of their efforts to figure out how to control human thoughts, alter sexual behavior, wipe out memories. Dr. Frank R. Olson leaped to his death after being administered drugs that he didn't know he was taking. His survivors got $750,000 in compensation from the government after the press revealed the chilling details. But we will never know how many other people are dead or deranged because the CIA made them unwitting guinea pigs.

Still, it is not this frightening past that ought occupy our deepest thoughts; it is the question of whether we can guarantee the future against such behavior by an arm of our government.

I asked that question recently of Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.

Inouye told me how for the first time in our history the Congress is exercising some meaningful "oversight" over the CIA, FBI, and similar agencies. They are now telling Inouye and a handful of his colleagues what they plan to do secretly, they are giving periodic reports to Inouye on the status of approved clandestine operations; and they have had Inouye and his Senate colleagues blow the whistle on activities that turned out to be stupid or go beyond the bounds originally approved.

Is this safeguard enough? Inouye says no. "If grievous abuses happened before," he says, "they can happen again. The Congress and the American people must be exceedingly vigilant." One great danger, Inouye says, is that the chairman of the oversight committee will become "snowed" by the fact that the intelligence boys are telling him such super secrets, and that they will wind up with the overseer "in their pockets." So Inouye believes that no senator ought to be chairman for more than two years. He says he will step down in December after only one and a half years — probably passing the mantle to Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.

Inouye's successor, you and I ought to go to bed often repeating the Hawaiian's warning: If our secret operatives committed grotesque crimes before, they could commit them again, and only with exceptional vigilance do we have even a spook of a chance of preventing it.

In Washington CWA arm of Carter campaign

By MARTHA ANGLE and
ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Sworn testimony in a recently resolved court case provides new evidence of organized labor's audacity in circumventing the law designed to eliminate the influence of large contributions in campaigns for federal office.

The civil suit, filed by the Republican National Committee in U.S. District Court in Alexandria, Va., alleged that the Communications Workers of America (CWA) abused its privilege to mail political literature at the Postal Service's low-cost "bulk rate."

An out-of-court agreement settled the dispute before a trial had been scheduled, but pre-trial depositions produced some unusually candid testimony from Mikel K. Miller, chief political operative for the CWA, whose members include more than 500,000 telephone company employees.

Questioned under oath, Miller acknowledged that during last autumn's presidential campaign he had "in the neighborhood of maybe a dozen" telephone conversations with Landon Butler, political director of Jimmy Carter's campaign organization.

"The bulk of the conversations," said Miller, "dealt with the kinds of activities that we were doing and communicating with our members on behalf of the presidential campaign in terms of, you know, the materials we were sending out, the kinds of material we were planning to send out."

He also described what occurred "when we decided in late September, early October, to produce a brochure and produce a letter from CWA President Glenn E. Watts to all active and retired union members, urging them to vote for Carter."

"To get an accurate reflection of Carter's position," explained Miller, the union relied on a letter the candidate had sent to Watts and on "transcriptions of two conversations of two speeches, if you want to put it that way, from Jimmy Carter to the CWA at our conventions in '75 and '75 ... We excerpted heavily from those two speeches or conversations."

The Federal Election Commission, in implementing campaign finance reform legislation of recent years, has allowed labor unions to spend unlimited funds "to make partisan communications in connection with federal elections to members and their families."

But the commission's rigid rules require that "the material constitutes a communication of the view of . . . the labor organization" and cannot be "simply the republication or reproduction . . . of any broadcast transcript or tape, or any written, graphic or other form of campaign materials prepared by the candidate" or campaign committee.

Despite that restriction, the Republican lawsuit turned up one case where CWA local 2323 in the Washington suburbs mailed out 1,500 copies of a Carter leaflet specifically identified as having been paid for by the local Democratic organization.

In other cases, Miller's testimony makes clear that although the CWA did not technically violate the federal regulations, its extensive promotion of Carter's candidacy was the product of close coordination with the official campaign organization, not a truly independent expression of support.

That assistance was crucial because, with the exception of unions communicating with their members and corporations communicating with their employees and stockholders, no individuals or organizations were allowed to contribute anything to assist the two major party presidential candidates. (All of their funds came from the federal treasury.)

The CWA found a loophole in that law and spent more than $100,000 — including $67,527 for letters from Watts to all members and $25,439 worth of free advertising in the union's monthly newspaper — in a questionable political operation which made the union little more than an extension of the Carter campaign organization.

Scores of other unions operated with similar impunity, making them the last of the "fat cats" in an era when large political contributions have been widely recognized as a corrupting, unhealthy influence on the electoral process.

The apologists

It is categorically impossible for the liberal mentality to come to grips with the reality of human sin. Such failures are almost always explained away as being a result of imperfect social systems.

Such was certainly the case with the orgy of looting, arson and vandalism that accompanied the July 13-14 blackout in New York City. The ashes were hardly cool before the whole ugly episode was being dismissed as the result of the nation's failure to come to grips with the problems of the cities.

This refrain first surfaced on the editorial page of the New York Times, and then was taken up by UN Ambassador Andrew Young; even President Jimmy Carter joined in to sadly observe that hungry people are prone to do such things.

Now it's the turn of the district attorney of Brooklyn, who sets the conventional wisdom to flight. Eugene Gold reported that of the 176 persons indicted so far as a result of the looting, less than 10 per cent were on welfare. Nearly half of them had regular jobs, and 41 per cent were in an anti-poverty or educational program.

If hunger were the motivating factor in the looting, one would expect that food stores would have been the hardest hit. But according to Gold's figures, the top targets were furniture stores, followed by drug, jewelry and clothing stores. Only six grocery stores were looted.

Gold has suggested that Carter and others might want to "re-evaluate their statements."

New York's "night of the animals," as one police officer styled it, was not the result of hunger, or even simmering social discontent, by and large. It was perpetrated by hundreds of basically dishonest ripoff artists who saw their opportunity and seized it.

Capitalism, yes

The honorable fruits of capitalism are the best defense of what is still the soundest economic system the world has devised. But we are glad to be reminded by a Rutgers University sociologist that all the recently exposed ethical and legal lapses by capitalists do not destroy another factor in favor of the system they have dishonored. It is the correlation between capitalism and democracy. Thus Americans, for example, serve their democratic political interests by pruning the abuses and nourishing the strengths of capitalism.

"To be sure, a number of ugly dictatorships have capitalist economies and there are capitalists undeterred by hand-holding relationships with dictators," writes Prof. Peter Berger in the Wall Street Journal. But he adds that "There is not a single democratic regime in the world today that does not have a capitalist economy." This is more than coincidence.

Think about it. (Christian Science Monitor)

"Mr. Califano knows everything worth knowing about welfare."

By JACK ANDERSON and
LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The Library of Congress offers our national legislators more than books to borrow. It also provides a research service whose 500 harried researchers will check out anything that might arouse a congressman's curiosity, no matter how idle.

What would House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill like to know about Swiss bank accounts? Are there some historical tidbits about the Hudson Valley that Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-N.Y., could slyly drop as he travels around the area?

Would someone please complete a school project for the daughter of Rep. Ronald Bo Ginn, D-Ga.? How can Vice President Walter Mondale find a foreign pen pal for a constituent? What should Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., say to the Wyoming Valley Catholic Laymen's Retreat League?

Editor's mail Sheriff's race is kept clean

I would like to say how proud I am of all the candidates for sheriff.

So many times, especially with so many popular candidates running, one feels the need to "put down" the other candidates.

So far, I have seen none of this. So, keep it clean guys and good luck to all of you.

Merry-go-round Stable of researchers kept by congressmen

Whatever the inquisitive folks on Capitol Hill want to know, the Congressional Research Service (CRS) will try to find the answers. Upon request, the researchers will spend up to 50 hours on a single project. They handle upwards of 300,000 congressional inquiries annually, a service that costs the taxpayers about $20 million a year.

All the answers are confidential and unavailable to the taxpayers who pay for the research. A CRS spokesman contended that most of the inquiries are proper requests for information that congressmen need in their work. But some of the confidential requests we have seen are questionable.

Some members of Congress have used the researchers, for example, to help privileged youngsters with their schoolwork. Rep. Ronald Bo Ginn's daughter needed some overnight research on prison reforms to meet a school deadline. Explains the confidential request slip: "For Member's college-age daughter for a school project. . . A good bibliography would also be useful."

A spokesman said the research was really prepared for a friend of the congressman's daughter. It may have been improper, the spokesman conceded, to ask the CRS to expedite the research. But he insisted it was "appropriate" to request information for school-aged constituents.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., would agree. He has asked the research service to provide his student constituents with everything from the state song of Georgia to charts of the United States. And Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., ordered the CRS to help one of his aide's offspring with college homework on the judicial system.

Some legislators have sought personal information from the research service. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., the 1976 Republican vice presidential candidate, asked CRS for a genealogy of his family.

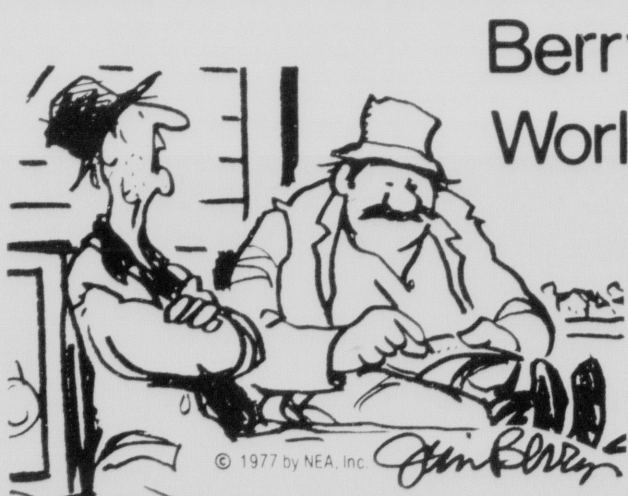

From Speaker Tip O'Neill's office came a hush-hush request for information about Swiss bank accounts. The researcher not only was informed it was "for personal use" but was also instructed not to submit a written response. He obediently telephoned the answers to O'Neill's office, but first he wrote down the questions on a confidential request slip:

"If staffer had funds in a Swiss bank and died, what problems would be encountered in the inheritor's getting the money into the U.S.?" And this one: "If staffer had property in Bermuda and died, would estate taxes have to be paid to both Bermuda and Britain; or is there some kind of reciprocal agreement? What problems would there be?"

A spokesman suggested the questions must have come from a constituent. The speaker also requested the score of the musical, "Carnival." Vice President Mondale wanted to know how a young constituent could find a foreign pen pal, age 13 to 16, preferably in Switzerland.

School board approves bonds resale

The Board of Education Tuesday night approved the resale of bonds on the Junior High School that will net the district a savings of $234,010 by 1980.

Representatives of two Kansas City investment banks, Zahner and Company and Stern Brothers and Company, proposed the resale of bonds issued in 1970 earlier in the summer. According to the spokesmen for the two firms, their banks will purchase the bonds and sell them at a higher price and lower rate of interest.

The district will pay 5 per cent on the bonds, according to the contract entered into Tuesday. At present the bonds are at 6 per cent interest.

To reissue the bonds, the district will have to place money currently in its debt service fund into an escrow account. The debt service account pays off the interest on the original sale of the school bonds. In an escrow account the money would serve basically the same purpose, but would be allowed to gain interest, accounting for some of the savings to the district.

In other business, the board learned that the expansion of the junior high school to a middle school will require an addition to the heating plant.

Superintendent of Schools Kem Keithly told the board the heating unit was originally designed to handle an expansion of up to 12,000 square feet. The junior high expansion will be about 20,000 square feet, requiring the additional heating unit. Keithly said the cost of the unit will probably not boost the original cost estimate for the expansion. He said the architects have allowed a $30,000 "buffer" to absorb any such unforeseen expenses.

The current estimated cost of the expansion is $593,800. That figure reflects the inclusion of a $13,000 elevator, required by law for all handicapped students, according to Keithly, and $68,000 for two alternate classrooms to house students that were attending classes in the cafeteria.

In other action, the board set Aug. 16 and Sept. 29 as special meeting dates. The first meeting will be with the architect of the junior high expansion. Keithly said the board will make a formal decision to let bids at that meeting. The September meeting will be to open bids on the expansion.

John Eisenmenger, a teacher at the junior high for the past four years, was named by the board to be director of special education.

Rep. Anderson makes energy predictions

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The chairman of the House Republican conference predicts that the Senate will come up with an energy bill to deregulate the price of natural gas and newly discovered domestic oil over a period of five years.

Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois said an energy bill passed recently by the House at President Carter's urging, foolishly places too much hope in conservation.

"We were on a rigid timetable and under strict injunctions," he said. "The Senate will not be under these artificial constraints and will come up with a better product."

His comments were in an interview in connection with a speech he made Tuesday to a management meeting sponsored by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

WATERLOO INDUSTRIES MEANS CONTINUED GROWTH FOR SEDALIA

Sedalia citizens will have an opportunity on Tuesday, August 16th to vote on an Industrial Development Revenue Bond Issue to finance construction of a 250,000 square foot facility for Waterloo Industries. The manufacturing complex will be constructed on 32 acres in the Sedalia Industrial Park.

The following facts are presented for your review:

Q—Who is Waterloo Industries?

A—Waterloo Industries, Inc. is the largest manufacturer of metal fabricated tool boxes and accessories in the United States. Waterloo Industries is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Beatrice Foods Company, who is financially guaranteeing the proposed bond issue. Beatrice Foods had sales in 1976 of $5 billion and net earnings of $182 million. Waterloo Industries currently operates facilities in Iowa, Arkansas and California.

Q—Who are the major customers of Waterloo Industries?

A—Waterloo Industries has been a major supplier of Sears-Roebuck and Company's line of tool boxes, chests and cabinets for over 30 years. Many products manufactured by Waterloo Industries are sold to other companies and marketed under private brand names. Waterloo Industries also manufactures its own line of tool boxes, chests and cabinets.

Q—What benefits will the new Waterloo facility bring to our city?

A—First year employment is anticipated to be 400 with a future potential of 800 total employees. Job opportunities will exist in the classifications of press operators, welders, assemblers, painters, maintenance, electricians, tool and die makers, clerical and supervisory. Waterloo Industries plans to hire these people locally whenever possible.

Q—How will the manufacturing plant be financed?

A—The plant will be financed by an industrial revenue bond issue in the amount of $11,000,000. These are the same kind of bonds that Sedalia voters just approved for the Kelsey-Hayes Company by a 92% margin.

Q—What are industrial revenue bonds?

A—Industrial development revenue bonds are authorized by a city, approved by the state, sold to private investors, and secured solely by the property constructed and purchased with their proceeds — ALL AT NO COST OR OBLIGATION TO THE CITIZENS OR CITY.

Q—Why are there industrial revenue bonds?

A—Industrial development revenue bonds are authorized to seek business to locate in a city, creating growth, job opportunities and economic expansion. Yet they create NO OBLIGATION upon local tax payers.

Q—Do the citizens of Sedalia pay for these bonds?

A—NO! Bond principal and interest will be paid only by rentals received from Waterloo Industries. Missouri's bond law states "the industrial development revenue bond DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A DEBT OF THE MUNICIPALITY."

Q—Is industrial bond financing common in the State of Missouri?

A—ABSOLUTELY! Over 125 communities in Missouri have issued industrial development revenue bonds since 1960. Every such bond issue presented to Missouri voters was approved, including the recent Kelsey-Hayes Company bond issue in Sedalia.

Q—Are industrial development revenue bonds the same as general obligation bonds?

A—NO! They are totally different. If there is a default in the payment of principal or interest, there is NO OBLIGATION on the city or on its citizens to make up the deficit.

Q—Will the issuance of these bonds limit in any way Sedalia's ability to issue future bonds for schools, utilities, hospitals, or other normal municipal bonds?

ABSOLUTELY NOT. Industrial Development revenue bonds do not limit in any way the City's right to issue general obligation bonds.

Q—Will government units receive any revenues if the bond issue is approved?

A—Waterloo Industries will be among the top five industrial tax payers in the County. The City of Sedalia, Pettis County, Sedalia #200 School District, State Fair Community College and other taxing units will benefit from the company's location.

Q—Will the issuance of these bonds affect my taxes in any way?

A—NO! Additional taxes WILL NOT be assessed as a result of the issuance of these bonds.

Q—Who will pay the costs associated with issuing the bonds?

A—Waterloo Industries will pay all expenses relating to the election or to the issuance of the bonds, including this Fact Sheet.

Q—What is the best way to insure passage of this bond issue?

A—By knowing the facts, by passing them on, and by voting YES on Tuesday, August 16.

Q—Where are the polling places?

FIRST WARD: Heber Hunt School, Seventh & Warren
SECOND WARD: Washington School, 601 So. Engineer
THIRD WARD: Whittier School, 907 E. 16th St.
FOURTH WARD: Horace Mann School, 16th & Stewart

Q—What are the hours for voting?

A—6 A.M. to 7 P.M. Ask your employer to allow time off to vote on this important issue.

VOTE YES Tuesday, August 16

South was most unhappy when North jumped to four spades. He wished that he had merely rebid two or three clubs after North's one-heart response, but there was no use crying over spilt milk. He was stuck in four spades and had to make the best of it. He won the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds, noted that there were 10 easy tricks at notrump and realized that since the game was match points he had best try to collect 11 tricks at spades. He led a club to his ace at trick two and continued with the 10 spot. At this stage of the played West could have ruffed, cashed two diamonds and set the contract one trick since East would be sure of a spade trick. But West didn't know about that solid club suit. He discarded a diamond and now South was in control. He led a third club and West ruffed small. Dummy overruffed and South played king and ace of trumps. When both opponents followed, South just continued to play clubs. The defense did collect one trick with the queen of spades and one diamond trick at the end, since South had only one trump left in dummy to ruff diamonds with. By making five spades, South had turned a disaster into a triumph.

Rerun of the Teenage Lament

Dear Ann Landers: About five years ago you printed a poem. I believe it was called "Teenage Lament." When I read it I was moved but I never dreamed I'd ever need it for my own teenager. Well, now I do — desperately. Will you please hunt it up and run it again? Thank you very much. — Short Hill, N.J. Mother

Dear Mother: The poem was by Nancy Curtis and it produced an unexpected response from teenagers. All positive. I'm running it again for you and others who have asked for a repeat. Teenage Lament, by Nancy Curtis

The new morality — and freedom
From classes — what a drag!
From Mom and Dad — always arguing.
From homework — senseless hours.
From discipline — useless.
From church — a bore.
From conformity — a hangup.
I'm my own woman now.
Made so by one decision.
One hour of love and pleasure.

Free now to look at my cheerleading sweater hanging in the closet.
My books and basketball schedule resting on the shelf.
My material for a prom formal — never made — as it sits amid the remnants
Of the fabrics left over from my maternity tops.
My medals from band and choir, forsaken in the clutter of a jewelry box.
My friends passing by my window
Laughing over the gossip column in the school paper
And giggling over who will be the next to experience
The new morality — and freedom

For cleaning — what a drag!
For him — always arguing.
For ironing — senseless hours.
For dishes — useless.
For cooking — a bore.
For sex — a hangup.
Oh, God, if you are there, Please let someone take this crying baby off my hands
And let my feet dance once more.
I am so old. And I was never young.
Dear Ann Landers: You are going to settle this: When a man and a woman meet on the street, who should speak first? I say the woman — because if she chooses not to recognize the man, for whatever reason, it is her privilege. Am I right or wrong? — Vermont

Dear Verm: When friends meet, the one who recognizes the other first should speak first. Warning: As we get older, the ol' eyes aren't what they used to be, so don't consider yourself snubbed if you aren't acknowledged. It could be that you weren't seen.
Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Utility rates and you — Part 2

PSC to consider alternatives to current pricing system

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Alternatives to the current system by which electrical rates are determined are examined in this story on the Public Service Commission's study of rates, the second in a three-part series.)

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Should the poor or low-income elderly have their rates for basic electric service reduced and then frozen?

Should people who use more power pay a larger percentage of the cost?

Should every power consumer pay exactly the same rate for the same amount of energy?

The Missouri Public Service Commission will deal with those questions and others when it opens hearings later this year on a plan to revamp the rates consumers are charged for their utility services.

Saying the present structure fails to "encourage the efficient use of energy and recognize and reward customers who choose to conserve," the PSC has ordered St. Joseph Light & Power Co. to scrap it.

The impetus to restructure rates has been increasing since the late 1960s as utilities appear unable to halt spiraling rates that have meant "in some cases the electric bills for residential customers approach or exceed their home mortgage payments," the PSC said.

Numerous alternatives to present rates, where the unit cost of power decreases as more power is used, have been suggested to the commission, including:

—Lifeline rates, where the monthly charge for a basic or minimum amount of power, probably in the range of 400 to 500 kilowatt hours a month, is kept at a minimum to assure that everyone can afford it. Utilities in Kansas City and St. Louis figured the average monthly usage by residential customers at 600 to 700 kilowatt-hours in 1975.

—Peak load rates, where persons pay more if they use power when the demand and the cost to generate it is at the highest level, while those using power during "off-peak" periods pay less.

—Flat rates, where every consumer pays the same for each unit of power used, whether it is one kilowatt-hour or 1,000.

—Inverted rates, where the cost of each unit of power increases as more power is consumed, thereby rewarding persons who conserve.

—Contract rates, where customers agree to permit utilities to interrupt power to specific appliances—such as air conditioners and furnaces—during periods when the demand for energy is at its highest.

Of all the alternatives, the two that have generated the most debate are lifeline rates and peak load pricing. The PSC hopes to incorporate to some extent both principles in the revamped rates for St. Joseph, which will serve as the pattern for changes in other utility rates.

William Barvick, the state's public counsel who represents consumers before the commission, has asked for implementation of lifeline rates in past cases, and he says any lifeline rate plan should be administered solely by the utility.

"One of the things we would like to see is some type of rate design which would benefit the poor people or people that need the benefit but would not require some type of bureaucracy to administer it," Barvick said. "What I'd like to see is something the utility could administer itself."

But E.L. Blakeley, St. Joseph vice president, said the philosophy of his company is that social problems should be handled by social agencies. He said a state subsidy for the poor might be a better answer than artificial rates imposed by the utilities.

"I do agree there are people having problems paying their electric bills," Blakeley said. "But that should be handled through our social resources and not by misapplying the price of a product."

Advocates of lifeline rates say they are needed because utility service has become a mandatory part of modern life. But the debate arises over how effective such a plan would be and who should be eligible for the minimal monthly charge.

Usually considered applicable to the first 400 or 500 kilowatt-hours of electricity used monthly, lifeline rates, according to some proponents, should be available to every consumer because everyone needs an essential amount of energy to live.

Others contend soaring utility rates have hit low-income customers hardest since they pay the largest share of their income for utility service. To extend lifeline rates to others but the poor, they claim, would only dilute their impact.

But critics, while not very vocal, point out that in many cases poor persons use more than a basic amount of power, especially for heating because their homes are not well insulated. They contend substantially higher rates for more than basic power could actually hurt the poor.

Peak load rates have been viewed by many as an incentive for consumers to control their energy consumption and, therefore, their energy bills. Such rate structure calls for lower rates for each unit of power used during off-peak periods and higher rates for each unit consumed during peak periods when utilities must run their least efficient and most expensive generators.

The peak load rate system is intended to close the gap between the periods of high and low energy demand, allowing a utility to increase use of its cheaper, basic generation facilities and limit use of its expensive, peak demand facilities.

But some officials have questioned the effectiveness of the system, saying it could only ly result in merely shifting the time of peak demand.

Although some Missouri utilities are conducting studies into peak or time-of-day pricing, the roadblock to implementing such a system immediately is the cost of the equipment needed to collect the information.

Commissioner Stephen Jones, who is in charge of the rate restructuring case, said the commission is looking into each of the alternatives, but he predicted that none will be adopted without substantial modification.

"The problem with all of them is that they still don't get down to the real issue and that is that each customer pay the actual costs incurred for the power he uses," Jones said. "That is what we want the restructured rate system to do."

More jurors selected in Bolles murder case

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Jury selection in the trial of two men charged with the June 1976 car-bomb murder of newsman Don Bolles is about one-third complete.

Superior Court Judge Howard Thompson Tuesday approved four more jurors — a former school teacher, a computer operator and a machinist. A total of 26 jurors now have been chosen since jury selection began July 1. Once a panel of 36 or 38 has been seated, defense and prosecution attorneys will begin challenges to narrow the group to 12 jurors plus alternates to hear the trial.

Phoenix contractor Max Dunlap, 48, and suburban Chandler plumber James Robison, 55, are charged with first-degree murder and conspiracy in the slaying of the Arizona Republic reporter.

The judge excused four persons from jury duty Tuesday.

Robison's attorney, David Derickson, and Dunlap's lawyer, John Savoy, challenged the seating of the elderly woman school teacher on grounds Thompson had not determined whether she would require the defense to prove their clients innocent.

The woman said she had formed an opinion as to the guilt of the defendants, but could set it aside in rendering a verdict.

They also challenged the computer operator on grounds she had been exposed to news accounts of the trial after being warned not to by the judge.

Former Smithton mentor

Hogue to become S-C cage coach

The long search has ended, and Smith-Cotton High School has named a new varsity basketball coach.

Bill Hogue, head coach at Logan-Rogersville High School in southwest Missouri will take over the reigns of the Tiger basketball program, succeeding Dave Porter who resigned to take the head coaching job at Poplar Bluff.

Many area sports fans will remember Hogue as the man who guided the Smithton basketball program from 1967-69.

Smith-Cotton principal Morris Byrum called Hogue an "exceptional person," who stresses fundamentals in his coaching and enjoys working with kids.

In addition to coaching basketball, Hogue will teach driver's education and be assistant baseball coach.

Hogue attended Southwest City (Mo.) High School, and later attended the University of Tulsa where he played basketball.

He also attended Northeast Oklahoma State Teacher's College and Southwest Missouri State College.

Hogue has been head coach at Logan-Rogersville since 1972. Logan-Rogersville is a 2A school located about 10 miles east of Springfield.

He is active in summer basketball programs, and was an assistant at the State Fair Community College basketball camp conducted by coach Bill Barton.

Did he make it?

Umpire Lee Weyer called the Dodgers' Ron Cey safe on this close play at first, and that decision gave Los Angeles their only hit of the game, denying Cincinnati's Doug Capilla of a no-hitter. Cey bounced a grounder off Capilla's glove that was fielded by shortstop Dave Concepcion who made the throw to first.

Sudden-death

Curry wins playoff

Bobby Joe Curry beat Alan Braverman on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff Tuesday to take medalist honors for the second year in a row in the Sedalia Boys City Golf Championship.

Curry seemed to have the title wrapped up in regulation play, but a triple bogey and double bogey on the final two holes dropped him back into a tie with Braverman, the first-round leader, at 162.

Curry was not alone in his troubles on the challenging Westmoreland Country Club course, as the bogeys were plentiful, while the pars and birdies were few. Second-round scores averaged almost 10 strokes higher than first-round scores.

As many as five golfers were tied for the lead after 27 holes, but one-by-one the faded on the final nine, leaving Curry in strong position to walk off with the title.

A drive into the woods on the 35th hole of stroke play started the 17-year-old golfer's woes, and a missed short putt on the 36th set up the playoff.

Curry quickly took command of the first playoff hole, driving down the middle of the fairway, while Braverman's first shot sliced into the edge of the trees along the No. 1 fairway.

Braverman hit a short shot back on the fairway and put his third shot on the green, about 30 feet from the flag.

Curry's second shot was just off the edge of the green, about 25 feet from the flag, and the pressure was obviously on Braverman to sink his long putt.

He missed, rolling the ball about 10 feet past the cup, and Curry used a putter to leave himself an easy three-footer. Braverman sank his next putt to take a bogey five, but Curry knocked in his putt for par and medalist honors.

Braverman settled for medalist honors in the 16-year-old age bracket.

In the 15-year-old group, Scott Schulz was low scorer with a 36-hole total of 178. Dan Hurley earned the 14-year-old honors with a 184 for two rounds, and Jamie Griggs was tops among the 13-year-olds with a 207.

There were no 12-year-olds entered in this year's tournament.

The 16 low scorers now advance into match play, which begins today at Walnut Hills Country Club. Then it's back to Westmoreland for a round Thursday morning, with the third round of match play Thursday afternoon at Walnut Hills.

The championship round will be played Friday at Westmoreland.

Dinsdale to coach at Rolla

ROLLA, Mo. — Former Smith-Cotton basketball coach Jim Dinsdale has been named assistant basketball coach and physical education instructor at the University of Missouri-Rolla.

Dinsdale replaces Jerry Kirksey who held the position since 1970. Kirksey resigned to take a similar position at Drury College in Springfield.

Dinsdale will begin his duties when classes start at UMR Aug. 20.

He received his B.S. in education from the University of Missouri-Columbia in 1963. He played basketball three years and earned his letter with the Tigers.

Dinsdale received an M.S. in education from Central Missouri State University in 1975.

He was head basketball coach at Smith-Cotton from 1969 to 1973, compiling four winning seasons and placing third in the state Class L tournament in 1973.

He coached basketball and was a recreation instructor at Indian Hills Community College, Centerville, Iowa, for three years.

Dinsdale's career record as a head basketball coach is 120-70. His first coaching position was as junior high coach in Jefferson County, Colo.

Freeman Trophy

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Dynamo, piloted by Gerald Moog of the Goyal Canadian Yacht Club, has captured the Charles Freeman Trophy race on Lake Ontario after handicaps were counted.

Some 130 competitors in 11 divisions Tuesday sailed the 128-mile course, which runs from Rochester, to Main Duck Island, to Sodus Bay and back to Rochester again. The fastest vessel finished the course in just under 33 hours, race officials said.

Rampage, of the Rochester Yacht Club, was second.

NEW YORK (AP) — Nino Espinosa is glad that the New York Mets traded Tom Seaver.

Nothing personal—it's just that it's given him a starting spot in the pitching rotation.

"Pitching every fifth day helps me a lot more than pitching every ninth day," said Espinosa in reference to the days when Seaver was the king of the Mets' staff.

Now that Espinosa is getting more work since the controversial Seaver deal at the trading deadline two months ago, he's also getting more batters out.

On Tuesday night, he got most of the St. Louis Cardinals out, pitching an eight-hitter for a 4-1 victory.

"His endurance is improving," said Met Manager Joe Torre. "He threw the ball hard all the way through."

And while Seaver is gone, his savvy lives on with the Mets.

"Seaver told me to bend my right knee, to get more push off the mound," said Espinosa. "That way I'm throwing with my whole body."

Espinosa, posting his third complete game of the season and first career victory over St. Louis, struck out six while walking two, in raising his record to 6-8. He allowed only a single by Lou Brock over the last four innings after the Cards scored their only run in the fifth.

John Denny, 7-4, the Cardinals' starter, was victimized by shortstop Garry Templeton's first-inning error, which thwarted his effort to win for the first time in almost three months.

Templeton's error on leadoff batter Lenny Randle's grounder set the stage for the Mets' three-run first inning. Felix Millan singled, sending Randle to second. Steve Henderson's single scored Randle, with Millan stopping at second.

John Milner then singled, scoring Millan, and Henderson came across on a double-play grounder, giving Espinosa all the runs he needed.

The defeat dropped the fourth-place Cardinals 4½ games behind first-place Philadelphia in the National League East.

The teams matched runs in the fifth, when St. Louis cracked through Espinosa on Mike Tyson's second straight single and a double to center by Lou Brock. The Mets scored on a single by Millan, a fielder's choice and Milner's double.

Denny, who earlier missed 40 days of action on the disabled list with two separate hamstring pulls, left the game after five innings with a stiffness in his right shoulder.

Denny opened the season with seven straight victories, but the last was a shutout of Chicago at St. Louis on May 31.

Cubs 4, Pirates 1

George Mitterwald hit a two-run double and Ray Burris and Willie Hernandez combined on a six-hitter to lead Chicago over Pittsburgh. The defeat halted a string of 14 consecutive home victories by the Pirates.

Burris, 11-11, fell behind 1-0 in the first inning when Dave Parker walked with two out and came all the way home on a double by Bill Robinson. Pittsburgh starter Jerry Reuss, 7-11, yielded a game-tying, solo home run in the third inning to Bill Buckner, his seventh.

In the Chicago fourth, Bobby Murcer led off with a single and took third on Manny Trillo's double down the third base line. One out later, Mitterwald drove another double over third base, scoring Murcer and Trillo for the winning runs.

Reds 4, Dodgers 0

Rookie Doug Capilla and Pedro Borbon combined on a one-hitter as Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles before 53,385 fans, the Dodgers' largest home crowd of the season.

PGA begins Thursday

Watson-Nicklaus duel?

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Come drought or forest fire, the 59th Professional Golfers Association championship begins Thursday, with Tom Watson and Jack Nicklaus expected to wage another head-to-head duel like they did in the Masters and British Open tournaments.

However, there are dozens of relative unknowns in the field of 141 who will tee up on the picturesque, but parched, Pebble Beach course, a 6,806-yard, par 72 masterpiece on the Monterey Peninsula.

Names from Abbott to Zender and including such as Bizik, Cosina, Folkes, Hammer, Mengert, Mowry, Samorsky and Wright—most of them the club pros who balance the budget and give the PGA national body the tinge of democracy and its independence from the PGA tour.

The current format of the championship includes the 39 champions of PGA sections throughout the country, in addition to the 25 low scorers and ties in the 1976 PGA Club Professional Championship.

Despite the formidable field, which also includes the likes of defending titlist Dave Stockton, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Lee Trevino, Ben Crenshaw, Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf and Hubert Green, most of the pre-tourney attention has focused on a possible repeat battle between Watson and Nicklaus.

And there are plenty of reasons for it.

Watson, a five-time winner this year, outgamed Nicklaus in both the Masters and British Open.

Watson also won the Bing Crosby Pro-Am tournament in January, when two rounds were played at Pebble Beach.

Meanwhile, Nicklaus has won five tournaments at Pebble Beach, including the 1961 U.S. Amateur and the 1972 U.S. Open, both of which were played in the summer when drought conditions were prevalent.

He has not won a major tournament this year yet.

"I would like another matchup with Nicklaus," Watson said Tuesday before his first practice round. "But we'll have to wait until Sunday" to see.

Watson said he doesn't believe in playing any particular person in a head-to-head duel. "I play the golf course," he said.

The 28-year-old Watson said he was playing the best golf of his young career, but admitted, "even if I beat Nicklaus on Sunday, I will still call him the 'Master.'"

"I have to do it over 10 years," he continued. "He's been doing it for 17 years now. I don't know if I'll be on the tour that long."

Nicklaus said that for the first 63 holes he plays the golf course, then if it is even, it becomes match play.

Almost as much attention as a possible Watson-Nicklaus matchup has been garnered by the dry weather conditions in Northern California, which has caused a water rationing on the golf course.

White Sox happy go-go gone-gone

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Call them the Chicago White Socks.

By any name, the baseball team representing Chicago's South Side is a far cry from the fleet-footed go-go White Sox who last won the American League pennant in 1959. This year's crew of mashers has forsaken the go-go-go for going-going-gone...as in home run.

"They attack the ball. It's a case of having six or eight men in a row who can hit the ball out so they can't walk anybody to get to someone else," Manager Bob Lemon said Tuesday night after the White Socks socked six home runs in mauling the Seattle Mariners, 13-3.

The six homers gave the Socks a club record 144 for the season, erasing the 138 powered by the 1961 and 1971 teams. Eric Soderholm smashed two and Chet Lemon, Oscar Gamble, Jim Essian and Royle Stillman hit one apiece. Soderholm's pair of two-run shots marked the 10th time this season a White Socks player hit two homers in a game, another team mark.

Coupled with the Toronto Blue Jays' 6-2 triumph over Minnesota, Chicago opened a two-game lead over the Twins in the American League West.

In the only other games, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Cleveland Indians 3-1 and the Milwaukee Brewers shaded Detroit 6-4 after the Tigers took the opener of the twinight doubleheader, 4-2.

Seattle's Dan Meyer homered to give the Mariners a 2-0 lead in the top half of the first inning. But the White Socks roared back with five runs in the bottom of the inning on a two-run single by Gamble and Lemon's three-run homer.

Gamble hit a solo shot in the third. Later in the inning, Soderholm and Essian socked consecutive homers. Stillman's homer, a two-run shot, came in the seventh off Diego Segui.

"The power display we put on will build confidence once again," said Essian. "We are the power hitters."

"We've been in a slump for about a week," added Soderholm. "We've been kind of flat. But every team goes through that. I think we're out of it."

Blue Jays 6, Twins 2

Jesse Jefferson tossed a four-hitter and Roy Howell and Doug Ault homered for Toronto. The Blue Jays scored three times in the second inning on a walk to Otto Velez, doubles by Sam Ewing and Al Wood and a single by Steve Staggs. Howell homered in the third and Ault slammed a pinch homer in the fourth.

The crowd of 23,450 gave the Blue Jays a season attendance of 1,219,551, breaking the previous first-year record for an expansion club of 1,212,608 by the Montreal Expos in 1969.

Orioles 3, Indians 1

Tony Muser's double triggered a tie-breaking two-run rally in the eighth inning. Billy Smith beat out a bunt and Elliott Maddox delivered an RBI single. Following a double play, Lee May singled to score Smith with an insurance run.

The victory extended Cleveland's losing streak to six games and moved the second-place Orioles within 2½ games of the idle Boston Red Sox in the AL East. Ross Grimsley won his first game since July 14, allowing four hits.

Despite his tie-breaking single, Maddox isn't pleased with his play since he was activated shortly before the All-Star Game after a second knee operation.

What phase is he disappointed with? "Just about everything," he said. "I don't feel good in the field, I'm definitely not pleased with my average (.231) and I've got to start running better, too."

CHRYSLER BUICK CADILLAC

Laughs a dividend of his job

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Herman Mitchell, 39, from Los Angeles via Little Rock, Ark., has what he thinks is the best job in the world.

He works day hours. He always is in the fresh air. His labor isn't strenuous—more like a leisurely stroll in the country. And he only has to please one man, Lee Trevino, and that man probably is the easiest in the business to please.

Herman carries golf clubs for Trevino. This week, the PGA Championship is being played at famed Pebble Beach. Win or lose, it always is a lark.

"When I first started caddying for Lee on the tour last year, I didn't think I was going to make it," Herman said. "He is such a funny character. I laughed so much I thought my sides would split."

Caddying for Trevino is like touring the nation's fairways with a moving road show.

"He is always loose," Mitchell said. "He talks and jokes all the way around the course. He is a born comedian and such a quick thinker. He never seems to get upset. He never has chewed me out."

"But make no mistake about it, that man can play this game. I have never caddied for anyone, or seen anyone, who could do more with a golf club. He has worked himself into shape again after that operation."

"He could win this tournament," "Mitch" is a pillowy black man who chews on smelly cigars and espouses a cornpone philosophy about the only trade he ever has known. He caddied eight years for Miller Barber and had a string of other well-known clients before inheriting Trevino's bag from a Los Angeles friend, Neal Harvey, who quit the tour.

"Barber was hard to caddy for," he said. "He put the whole game in your hands. You had to read all the greens and pull all the clubs. With Lee, it's different. All he asks is that you be on time, have the distances charted and hold the flagstick. He does the thinking and the playing."

Herman became Trevino's caddy shortly before the garulous Mexican-American underwent an operation last November for a ruptured disc, a back ailment Trevino attributed to his bout with lightning in Chicago in the summer of 1975.

From 1968 until this misfortune, Trevino was the premier threat to Jack Nicklaus. He won 19 tour tournaments, including two U.S. Opens, two British Opens, the Mexican Open and the World Series of Golf.

His game went into an eclipse and a comeback was thought doubtful until he scored an impressive victory three weeks ago in the Canadian Open. Now, apparently back in shape and flashing his old skills, Trevino is rated a strong challenger in the PGA, starting Thursday, although he himself is skeptical.

"Depends on the weather," said Trevino, shivering in the Monterey Peninsula's unseasonable chill. "I jive when the temperature is over 75."

'Zark's' baptism a tough one

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — Given his choice, the athlete selected first at his position during last spring's pro draft would have opted for a lesser task.

But for Steve Pisarkiewicz, no steeper introduction to the demands he will face as a National Football League quarterback could have been conceived.

Pisarkiewicz, picked by the St. Louis Cardinals as the 19th player in the NFL draft, received his baptism to fire in the waning minutes of a 3-0 pre-season loss to the Atlanta Falcons.

Three times the former collegiate standout tried and each time he failed to advance his team goalward along a path sprinkled with penalties.

"I think I was exposed to a lot of things," reflected Pisarkiewicz, who connected on eight of 11 passes but saw two of the completions nullified by his teammates' infractions and was also sacked twice.

"I guess the most trying thing was the two-minute drill in less than two minutes," he mused.

"It was a learning experience. I'm thankful for that," added Pisarkiewicz. "There were some good things and some bad things, but we learned a lot."

Pisarkiewicz, a product of McCluer High School in suburban Florissant, last fall wound up a career at Missouri, where he erased passing standards set by the late Paul Christman.

Injuries to his shoulder and hand sidelined him for seven of his senior games but did not deter the interest of a multitude of scouts.

"I was surprised that the Cards picked me," said Pisarkiewicz. "I'd come in in February to let them take a look at my shoulder. When I left I had the impression they were interested but that a quarterback was something down the road.

"There's pressure because it's my hometown, but I've been under pressure before," he noted. "At the time of the draft I'd had calls from two teams, Kansas City and Cleveland. They expressed more interest than anybody else."

During grueling two-day practices under a blazing sun, the arm of Pisarkiewicz has become no more weary than an eager mind cluttered to overflow by the intricate nuances of his trade.

"The mental part's the hardest," he observed. "One thing helps, though. Right now they're not expecting you to do the things that you can do to 15 years from now."

Pisarkiewicz's tutor is Harry Gilmer, a onetime star NFL passer who extols the attitude, aptitude and attributes of his 23-year-old pupil.

"He's stated that this year is to be a learning experience and he's a good learner," said Gilmer. "I think he's kind of surprised that there's as much to it as there is."

"I've never had any trouble dedicating myself," said Pisarkiewicz. "I've sacrificed relationships and family. When you do that, you don't even think of not making it."

NHL says no to WHA's attempt to complete merger of leagues

NEW YORK (AP) — On the morning of what would be a very important day, Howard Baldwin sat at the breakfast table and made a prediction. "Their vote will be based on emotion—not on the strength of our applications," he forecast.

Hours later, the National Hockey League's Board of Governors cast a secret ballot against expansion for the 1977-78 season. Baldwin's New England Whalers, and the five other World Hockey Association teams to apply for NHL membership, would feel the stinging slap of rejection.

The vote cast, the conclave adjourned, NHL President-elect John Ziegler left the meeting room by a side door and sped to the suite where the WHA executives waited.

"He came up and said the decision had been made not to expand. They had turned it down," recalled Bill DeWitt of the Cincinnati Stingers. "No reason was given. The margin of the vote wasn't given. But expansion was turned down."

So, despite months of meetings and discussion in cities across North America, everything is almost exactly as it was. The NHL will operate next season with 18 teams; the WHA probably will go with eight.

Those include Cincinnati, New England, Quebec, Houston, Winnipeg and Edmonton—whose applications were nullified when the NHL voted not to expand—plus Birmingham and probably Indianapolis.

"After very careful and due consideration, the proposed plan of expansion was put to the governors and failed to obtain the requisite majority," Ziegler told a news conference after informing the WHA of the decision. "At this time, the matter of expansion is over for the 1977-78 season."

The secret vote was not revealed but at least five negative votes were needed to defeat the proposal.

"The fans won," said Harry Siden, general manager of the NHL Boston Bruins—one of the teams most staunchly opposed to accommodation of WHA teams.

"I knew it was in the bag," said Harold Ballard of the Toronto Maple Leafs, the most outspoken of expansion's antagonists. "Am I happy!"

Baldwin clearly was not. "I'm in shock that a group of businessmen could make such an irresponsible decision," he said. "But I'll tell you one thing: this has united the WHA emotionally and financially. We will be as aggressive now as we were in our first year in competing for players, for television monies and for international competition."

Veteran star Gordie Howe of Baldwin's Whalers echoed his president's disappointment. "The pulse of the comments seemed to indicate the fans wanted it. It's unbelievable. So many people worked so hard..."

Despite the effort, the expense, and the long hours of waiting, Baldwin's ominous prophecy had come true. It's too early to tell whether they'll try again next year.

Medalist ousted in women's golf

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I'm a very poor match player. If I knew the reason, I'd correct it," said Mary Beth Murphy.

Mary Lawrence, the medalist of the 1977 National Women's Amateur Golf Championship, will never buy that statement. The 17-year-old Floridian stunned her 2-and-1 in the opening round Tuesday.

"She's good, she's consistent, she has a lot of talent," said the loser from Canton, N.Y.

While the medalist fell at soggy, hilly Cincinnati Country Club, the two former champions still in the field, Beth Daniel (1975) and Mrs. Stephen Sander (1958-61-63), posted triumphs with sputtering performances.

"My driver was all over the place. I had to play safe shots. I couldn't even see the green on some of my second shots," said Miss Daniel, who two-putted for par on the last hole to oust Barbara Riedl of Pi-qua, Ohio, 1-up.

"I can't hit the loose shots I've been hitting and keep winning," said the 39-year-old Mrs. Sander, from Seattle. "One thing, I can still make those six-eight foot crucial putts though."

Miss Murphy quit golf for basketball this winter and was the self-described defensive center of her Naples High School team. "I was sick of golf. I wasn't getting anywhere," she said.

Then, inspired to win the Florida Juniors in her final summer, she returned to golf in April. But she hurt an arm hitting practice balls and it has led to an assortment of injuries.

Miss Murphy, the medalist in the National Juniors last week, plays with a tennis elbow support on her left arm for strained tendons.

"I'm having trouble with my neck, too," she ticked off her list of injuries. "My shoulder gets very tight in this sort of weather. I keep ice on my wrist all night. It keeps the swelling down, but I wake up with my hand numb."

"It makes it difficult for me to feel the putter. That must be why I'm putting so poorly."

It was one of those three putts at No. 14 that enabled Miss Lawrence to win her third straight hole and pull even. But Miss Murphy won No. 16 and 17 with accurate, booming drives to end the match.

"Playing the medalist makes you play harder," said the upset winner. "It brings out something extra. People expect you to lose. That's crazy."

Canadian Cathy Sherk and Catherine Reynolds, a Tulsa University golfer from Springfield, Mo., were the only players in the match play fields of 32 to master par of 73.
